Website terms of use

Review draft, not yet in force. This English text is a translation for information; the German version prevails. Open operational details are to be confirmed before approval. This publication does not constitute acceptance of a contract.

Version 1.2 | 10 September 2026 | English translation of the German contract version | Review draft, not yet in force

1. Operator

Acunomic GmbH, Leutschenbachstrasse 95, 8050 Zürich, Switzerland, with its registered office in Zürich, UID CHE-274.507.729, operates this website. Details and contact information are in the imprint.

2. Information and conclusion of contracts

This website provides information about Acunomic and its services. General product descriptions and indicative prices are not binding offers. Product contracts are formed after the general terms and product terms have been expressly accepted. Visiting or reading alone does not count as acceptance of all contractual restrictions of this website. Where a function requires a binding agreement, the terms are made available in advance and expressly accepted. Existing customer contracts are not changed by notices on the website.

3. Content and use

Content is protected to the extent of the applicable rights. Use for one's own information, permissible quotations and use permitted by law remain possible. Any further reproduction or publication requires permission or a suitable licence. Expressly open licences take precedence for the content they cover. The trademarks of Oracle, NetSuite and Odoo belong to their respective owners; descriptive use does not claim any unconfirmed certification or partnership.

4. Security

Unlawful access, malware, attacks and the unauthorised extraction of personal data are prohibited. Access restrictions may be applied proportionately for security or where the law requires it. Permissible linking or use permitted by law is not prohibited across the board.

5. Professional information and third-party links

Articles, comparisons and calculators are general information and not individual legal, tax or audit advice. Acunomic strives for factual accuracy; outdated or incorrect information can be reported. Third-party websites are not operated by Acunomic. Their terms and data processing must be reviewed separately; Acunomic's own statutory responsibility is not excluded across the board.

6. Enquiries

Enquiries are processed in accordance with the Privacy Policy. Particularly confidential documents should be sent only after a suitable channel has been agreed. Receipt does not create an advisory engagement, but neither does it remove any statutory data protection or confidentiality duties. Unsolicited ideas do not automatically transfer to Acunomic exclusive rights or an unrestricted, free-of-charge licence to exploit them.

7. Cookies

The cookie notice describes the review status and the requirements for tracking. These terms replace neither any consent required nor a working consent management.

8. Availability and liability

No availability is promised for this free information website. To the extent that a liability rule has been validly agreed and is legally permissible, liability for indirect damage and lost profit caused by slight negligence is excluded. Liability for unlawful intent, gross negligence, culpably caused personal injury and any other mandatory liability remains unaffected. Customer claims are governed by the customer contract concerned; these notices do not reduce them. Visitors' statutory claims are not waived merely by visiting the website.

9. Changes

New notices apply to future uses that are expressly agreed. They change neither existing customer contracts nor claims that have already arisen. The version date remains visible.

10. Law and language

To the extent that a choice of law is validly agreed, Swiss substantive law applies, excluding the UN Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods (CISG). For business customers, Zürich may be agreed as the place of jurisdiction; jurisdiction over the subject matter is determined by law. Mandatory provisions on applicable law and jurisdiction, in particular those protecting consumers, remain in force. The German version prevails; translations are for information only. The language of proceedings is determined by procedural law.

11. Further documents

The general terms, product terms, support and SLA, data processing agreement, acceptable use, service catalogue, imprint, privacy and cookies are separate documents, each with the scope stated in it.

Change note

Version 1.2: German version prevailing, correct operator, express acceptance instead of blanket binding by browsing, and visitors' rights preserved.